If your driver's license has been suspended, the DOL will require you have an SR22 filed in order to reinstate your license. They will mail you a notice to the last address you provided them. Did you notify them of your last move? Do you have a habit of ignoring your mail?

Fortunately, finding out if your driver's license is suspended is not difficult. Here are three ways to check:

1. Check Your Driver's License Status Online
2. Call the Washington Department of Licensing (360)902-3900
3. Talk to a representative in person at your local DOL office
